Family First Advisor

Geoff brings more than thirty years of public accounting and auditing experience to our clients. His laid-back demeanor is esteemed for its power in drawing imaginative insights out of our accounting professionals to help ensure client satisfaction. He serves as principal-in-charge on many of Bond Beebe's audit and tax engagements.

Professional Experience

Geoff began his accounting career in the comptroller's office of a large insurance company. Upon joining Bond Beebe in 1977, he began working with a diverse set of clients and gained an exceptionally broad range of experience. He has worked with established and start-up small businesses, family businesses, government grant recipients and not-for-profit organizations.

A seasoned professional, Geoff advises clients in a wide range of domestic and international industry areas including small to medium-sized businesses in the construction industry, distributorships, retailers, wholesalers, venture capital firms, and research and development companies.

His not-for-profit clients have included organizations such as employee benefit plans, political organizations including PACs, charitable organizations, condominium and homeowners associations, public interest groups and trade and professional associations. This breadth of experience enables him to speak to and provide strategies for almost any tax or business situation his clients face.
